

Prof. Dr. Antonis LIONARAKIS

Hellenic Open University, Greece

Antonis LIONARAKIS is Professor of Open and Distance Education and Deputy Director of the Laboratory of Educational Material and Methodology at the Hellenic Open University. He was Associate Lecturer at the Open University, United Kingdom (1992–1998) and member of the Governing Board of the Institute of Continuing Adult Education in Greece. He is the founder and president of the 'Hellenic Network of Open and Distance Education' and editor in chief of the 'Open

Education' Journal (<http://www.opennet.gr>) He coordinates several research projects and has published books with Desmond Keegan, Börje Holmberg, Otto Peters, Marta Mena and others in the field of ODL. He has also taught and presented his work in the UK, France, Iceland, Japan and Turkey. His current research interests are the pedagogical implications of distance learning and polymorphic learning material.

Hellenic Open University
Sahtouri 23, Patra 26222, GREECE.
Email: alionar@eap.gr